EU Parliament sends copyright law back for revision

On the 5th of July 2018 the European Parliament voted by 318 to 278 votes to reject the negotiating mandate to start trilogue negotiations with the European Council and European Commission on the new copyright directive, as proposed by their Legal Affairs Committee. This means that the Members of Parliament (MEPs) now have the opportunity to discuss contentious articles before the next session of the European Parliament in September 2018. Read more...

Eurodoc open letter to European Parliament on copyright directive

In our Eurodoc Open Letter to European Parliament on Copyright Directive we call upon all Members of the European Parliament to VOTE NO on the proposal for a Directive on Copyright in the Digital Single Market [File 2016/0280(COD)] on 05 July 2018. Eurodoc expresses serious concerns about Articles 3, 11, and 13 of the copyright directive, which place unwarranted restrictions on the text-and-data mining of copyrighted works, give overly extensive rights to press publishers for the online use of press content, and sweepingly oblige requests for authorisation or automatic filtering for uploading online content. ### "Open-science movement gains ground" - article in Research Europe Eurodoc president Gareth O'Neill has been interviewed by Research Europe. Early-career researchers find it easier than most to adopt open-science practices, Gareth O'Neill said, because they have "a totally different concept of privacy than a generation back; certainly different to the professors". But, he said, many still remain unaware of what open science means and who can help them at their institution. Read more...
